Exercise 7 – Praktikum Mobile Productivity

Project Phase and Milestones

After you have developed the blueprint for your mobile productivity application in the last two weeks, you will implement, test and evaluate it during the following project-phase of the practical course. The organisation of your efforts, the (preferably equal) distribution of work and the allocation of responsibilities in the teams are up to you. Nevertheless, please keep the following issues in mind:

- You have to finish the project (including a working prototype and a user evaluation) until Tuesday, February 6th 2007, the day of the final presentation.
- Additional milestone presentations on your current progress are expected on Tuesdays, December 19th 2006 and January 16th.
- Organize group meetings on your own. Except for the 3 presentation, no regular practical meetings will be held.
- Please make ample and frequent use of SVN in order to manage and submit all project-related data.
- Details about how to conduct the evaluation of your application will be given at the second milestone presentation. Thus your application should basically be working until this date so that you can concentrate on minor improvements and the user study.
- In case of difficulties you can always turn to Gregor Broll and Alexander De Luca.

Good Luck!
